

FIRM OVERVIEW

Strada means street. It's the most recognizable place where architecture and community life come together. As our name it reflects a shared passion to plan, design, and build enduring connections between people, buildings, and public spaces.

Actively led by the founding principals, Strada is a multidisciplinary architectural firm — an integrated team of architects, interior designers, urban designers, and landscape architects. We design environments that engage the people that use them and enrich the places where we work. Beyond meeting client goals, our projects succeed when we improve the quality of the community and inspire its citizens.

Working in collaboration, we focus our knowledge and creativity on each opportunity to deliver quality design that is beautiful and buildable, sustainable and sensible. The result: more than 90 percent of our work comes from satisfied clients and their referrals.

We are proud to be the trusted design advisors to cities and towns, colleges and universities, and developers of mixed-use projects and of public spaces. Our work brings the vitality and connectedness of the strada to the corridors of shops and offices, to campuses and communities and, yes, even back to the street.
