Strada

What is Strada?

Strada means “street” in Italian. Streets are the connections between buildings, people, and public spaces. They are the fundamental infrastructure of our communities and the core of our civic lives.

Just as people mingle on city streets, our office is a place where we freely exchange ideas, challenging and inspiring one another to create exceptional work.

Firm Overview

At Strada, we create physical connections that forge social connections. Founded and led by a team of seasoned professionals, Strada is a cross-disciplinary design firm where architects and interior designers regularly collaborate with urban designers, landscape architects, and graphic designers to create places that people enjoy.

More than a group of designers, Strada’s professionals are trusted advisors. Our individual experiences are deep and wide-ranging. Combined, we have broad resources and talents that give us the flexibility to design any type of building and resolve any challenge.

Our clients tell us that they value our hands-on involvement from start to finish. We employ a holistic, human-centered approach to design, delivering projects that satisfy program and function, both connecting to the context and making new civic contributions. Inherent in our approach are sustainable practices that save resources and ensure a healthy future for our cities and communities.

We set high standards for creative design, and we seek out clients who share our commitment to quality. We collaborate closely with our clients to achieve success in all of our projects.
